1. A mast, observed from the river at Swinoujscie (Gd. Swinemuende), appeared at first to end in a type of lightning conductor. A more detailed observation through field glasses, however, showed a polygonal box with solid sides, painted a reddish-orange, on top of the mast. The height of the box is about 25 to 30 cm.
2. Two rods placed opposite one another protrude from the top of this box ending in a ball as large as a fist which appears to be made of metal. The whole top of the mast can be compared to the centrifugal governor on a steam engine.
